Attention: Secretary Donna Shalala

Subject: Labeling of Irradiated Food

Dear Secretary Shalala,

A tremendous amount of pressure is being brought to bear to not label (or use some euphemistic name) irradiated food. I urge that you resist these pressures and REQUIRE CLEAR AND VISIBLE LABELING that the food is irradiated.

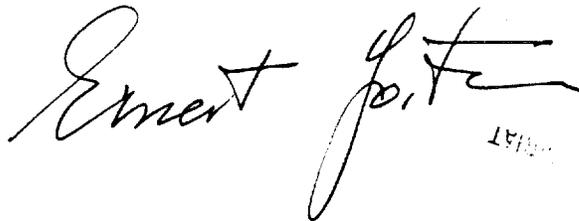

If the process is so wonderful, the industries that promote it should be proud to have their process identified and labeled.

I am also concerned that the powerful industries have such a corrupting influence on our federal agencies that make it necessary for ordinary citizens to write letters such as this.

The right to know what products and processes are used in the marketing of food products is a basic right for the consumers.

I hope you will side with the right of the people and insist that labeling of irradiated food be made mandatory.

Cordially,
